

Press Release

MÖBIUS celebrates its 10th anniversary and looks back on a decade of independent advice.

Sint-Martens-Latem, 15 January 2008. The independent company MÖBIUS was founded at the end of 1997 by Hendrik Vanmaele, lecturer at Ghent University and the Vlerick Leuven Gent Management School. His goal was to make unique expertise in service provision – processes, methodology and tools – available to a variety of stakeholders in the industrial, services and public sectors. The focus lies on providing support for complex problems in the domains of Business Process Management and Supply Chain Management.

The MÖBIUS team began with three people but has quickly grown into a multinational company currently employing 120 people. MÖBIUS distinguished itself from other consultancy bureaus through its concrete and operational approach based on top quality consultants and the continuous acquisition of expertise. The goal-oriented isolation of client problems and the offer of competitive solutions has generated a long list of satisfied clients. MÖBIUS consultants offer guidance for their clients from the initial requirements analysis up to and including the implementation of adapted or newly developed business processes. This procedure involves both an evaluation of IT systems but also of the employees' expertise and competencies. Naturally, all this occurs within an agreed deadline and budget.

Hendrik Vanmaele states: "MÖBIUS was one of the first consultancy bureaus to specialise in the model-based approach to business processes and has differentiated itself from the beginning through an independent approach founded on genuine expertise. Our consultants have a great deal of respect for our clients' existing values and objectives and devote a similar amount of attention to getting to know the company and its employees."

MÖBIUS wishes to take this opportunity to thank its clients for over 10 years of trust. We are constantly working to improve our level of service even further in order to enable our clients to achieve new levels of productivity and thus optimise their financial results."

MÖBIUS currently has an extensive portfolio of prestigious clients and since its foundation has established a firm footing in France and England. In 2007, MÖBIUS' turnover grew by more than 30% to €11.5 million. 60% of this income is generated within the services sector, the remaining 40% from the industrial sector. In the coming years, MÖBIUS aims to further develop and grow as an independent player in service provision with an important position in Western Europe..
